

Futures in Flux:

Braeburn Steps Onto the Global Stage

This month, Braeburn attended the annual Aga Khan Model United Nations conference with our largest delegation yet.

Under the theme “Futures in Flux,” students were immersed in some of today’s most current and complex global conversations. From US trade tariffs to the geopolitical tensions surrounding Greenland, alongside broader debates on climate and global power, delegates were challenged to think deeply and respond thoughtfully. They rose to the occasion with confidence and genuine diplomacy. It was inspiring to see them mastering the art of disagreeing agreeably while engaging in rigorous, critical discussion.

Debate. Diplomacy. Distinction.

On the second day, students wore cultural dress and proudly shared their heritage with one another. The day concluded with singing and dance performances, celebrating diversity and connection. It was a powerful reminder that meaningful negotiation begins with understanding.

Beyond the formal sessions, the conference offered moments that reminded everyone what Model United Nations is truly about.

We are especially proud to congratulate Hayaam, who was awarded Best Delegate in her committee. Representing Russia in the current global climate was no small responsibility, and she demonstrated composure and leadership throughout. Congratulations also to Sabrina and Naveen for earning Special Mentions in recognition of their valuable contributions.

We could not be prouder of the entire team. Their maturity, preparation, and commitment were evident in every session. This was diplomacy in action.

Watch this space. There may be exciting MUN plans on the horizon at Braeburn Dar.
